Lori focuses her practice on intellectual property and prosecution with an emphasis on chemical and industrial processes. She excels in drafting comprehensive patent applications that clearly articulate her clients' innovations.

Prior to practicing law, Lori spent three years in the oil and gas industry as a Water Site Lead and Technological Support Specialist. Her time in the field included both foreign and domestic work which Lori utilizes to facilitate her understanding of novel patents for a broad range of clients. From her industry experience, Lori has firsthand knowledge of the challenges companies face and understands their perspective.

Outside of her legal expertise, Lori is an advanced scuba diver and dives in her free time.
