Meghan is a public finance attorney respected for her ability to creatively solve problems and find long-term solutions. She is also a former litigator who is experienced at handling a diverse range of matters on behalf of business clients, ranging from data breaches to first amendment claims to trust and estate disputes.

Prior to her time with Dinsmore, Meghan spent several years in Washington, DC working for former United States Senator Rob Portman. During law school, Meghan served as an extern to United States District Judge Michael J. Newman in the Southern District of Ohio.

Outside of the office, Meghan is a mentor with the Federal Bar Association and was a member of the first class of Emerging Leaders in the Northern Kentucky Accelerate program. She currently serves as the President of the Lilabean Foundation's Ambassador Council, an organization focused on funding pediatric brain cancer research.
